RIGHTS VIOLATIONS OF CHILDREN DURING AND AFTER INSTITUTIONAL CARE HUMAN RIGHTS MONITORING WORK

Each child's self-realization and living an equal, free and dignified life are under the responsibility of the states which are parties to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). One of the areas where special measures are needed is the children who are deprived of or at risk of being deprived of parental care and therefore who are in need of alternative care.

EVALUATION

1. It has been seen that the reasons for protection have been ignored,
2. Individual plans have not been made for after-care and children were not ready for the process and post-care monitoring activities have not been performed,
3. Unilateral, incomplete and defective social review reports have been prepared while lifting protection decisions in the process of returning children to families,
4. Personnel mistakes have been effective in the preparation of incomplete, defective and baseless social review reports,
5. There is not enough effort for establishing a prevention mechanism for being "runaway", which is cited as a justification for lifting protection decisions, and creating organizations suitable for children,
6. A child-friendly justice system does not work,
7. Decisions about children were made solely by examining the file,
8. The children are not given the right to express their views freely on all matters of interest to them,
